

We own the public airwaves, yet Sinclair Broadcasting is FORCING their stations to carry what essentially is a free ad for the Bush campaign. Not only that, their ties to the Bush campaign make it all the more questionable. This seems to be a conflict of interest at the very least -- and points up the dangers of media consolidation.

I've been forced to turn to shortwave radio to get my news and am well aware of the efforts to introduce BPL which could destroy that.

Is the FCC even interested in a fair and open media anymore? If so, show it!
